illicit relationship!

Could the scandal possibly be true?

Tongues are wagging and fingers are shaking about the Duke of Kraig's after-dinner revelry where Princess Elaine was once more seen in the company of her beloved brother, Prince Haven. The two left together after a loud slap by the Princess Elaine made clear she had definite Royal Opinions about the kind of attention Prince Haven was attracting.

Interest was high in the newly invested Prince of the City. After Baroness Calypso of the Kingdom of Rebma accomplished her magisterial magic, heralds were heard noting the elevation of His Majesty, Our King's youngest son's elevation to the title.

Our sources, of course, have reported previously on the unseemliness, maybe even contrariness of the Princess Elaine's rejection of marriage to such notables as Duke Vebastian of the Eleven Reaches, Lord Cardonyx of the elusive Moonriders, and even possibly the young Prince Thomas of Celestine City, whose fair white hair and strange blue eyes are the swooning fancy of many a young Amber lass!

Secret meetings lead to...?

Could Princess Elaine really be willing to risk her father's wrath to do a little of the forbidden fandango? Could Prince Haven be encouraging her? You'll be the first to know!

relations with rebma

What does Rebma want with our best and brightest (not necessarily one and the same)? Why did they specifically leave Prince Haven out of their request for assistance against the reputed son of Cardonyx? And what assistance is our His Spyness, Prince Morombath going to be to the Queen of Intrigue?

Court reporters indicate that this was not a popular decision amongst the royal youth, but mere hours later, Prince Moro was seen in the presence of an intriguing Rebman lady, with short green curls, skin like the finest pearls, and large, luminescent eyes. A jewel from the Deep? One fit to be crowned, for sure! Pictures forthcoming!

court talk

Our earliest messengers say that the daily Court session is cancelled, leaving on the docket the anticipated case of the Mincarti Chess player, Willamul versus the proprietor of the Diamond Tear pub, and the purported cultural freedom precedent as a top concern for tomorrow!
